New Orleans Women.

From the Picayune.

The New Orleans woman proper is a Gallic American, or rather an American Gaul. She may never have been out of the country, or even out of the State; but for all that she is alien to the Republic, in the sense that she has little knowledge of it and less care for it and its affairs. If creole, or of creole descent or affinity, she reads French newspapers, has French habits and opinions, is essentially French in mind and manner. She talks English, though she thinks in French; she is an inhabitant of the United States, but a citizen of Louisiana, especially of its metropolis: most of her grand outings being to adjacent parishes. Once and a while she may go to St. Louis, or Mobile, or Charleston, or New York, but if she does it is a memorable event, and she regards it as a Chicagoan, Bostonian or New Yorker would regard the circumnavigation of the globe, a journey to the interior of Afghanistan, or the heart of Africa. Should the New Orleans woman be young, especially should she be unmarried, she may be very graceful, though rarely slender in figure, for plumpness, roundness comes very early with her. She is usually a brunette. Her manners are, as a rule superior to her person. It is marvelous what she can achieve with a bit of lace, half a yard of ribbon or a few flowers. The New Orleans woman is not very substantially educated, but such education as she has she can put to the best advantage. She is very fond of pleasure, of gaiety of every sort, and she sees more of these as a wife than as a girl, for she is very strictly and conventionally reared by her parents, and augments her area of freedom, with her matrimonial experiences.

A MAN WITH AN AIM.

Give me a man with an aim.
What-er the aim may be,
Whether it's war or whether it's peace,
Let him walk in the path of right,
And make the wronging days
A story of his or her life.
Give me the man who says,
"I will do something with it."
And makes the wronging days
A story of his or her life.
Though the aim he has be small,
It's better than none at all.
With something to do the whole year through,
He will not stumble or fall.

But Satan weaves a snare
For the feet of those who stray,
With never a thought of care,
Where the path may lead away.
The man who hath no aim,
Not only leaves no name,
When this life's done, but ten to one
He leaves a record of shame.

Misadventure.

The young man paced the parlors,
While she was cleaning her teeth;
And he thought of the terrible dollars
Which the old man had to bequeath:

The old man sat on the counter,
With his head between his hands,
And rejoiced that the girl had a lover
Who would help him meet his demands.

A Story of Capt. Carter.

During the retreat of the Confederate army from Kentucky (Bragg's invasion), in the fall of 1862, Col. Basil W. Duke's regiment of Morgan's cavalry was left, by order of Gen. Kirby Smith, at Falmouth, to guard the roads and watch the approach of the Federals, then advancing in large numbers from Cincinnati, Ohio, into the State.

The Covington and Georgetown turnpike being their center line of march. When they had reached a point about a mile from Walton, Boone county, and camped for the night, Duke left Falmouth about midnight, and by a hard ride reached the turnpike, equidistant from Walton and the Federal encampment, just as day broke. The advance vidette here reported a Federal picket post with ten men in sight. These were captured by a small force under Lieutenant Massie, going round, and in their rear, Duke then ordered Sergeant Will Hayes, of Covington, Kentucky, to select six men from the famous "advance guard" and proceed down the pike, find the enemy, and ascertain his position and strength. Hayes chose Ash Welsh, of Cyntiana, Ky.; Thomas Franks, of Holly Springs, Miss.; Frank Riggs, Hughes Conrad, and Chapin Bartlett, of Covington, Ky., and at once commenced the dangerous mission. Each man felt the responsibility resting upon him and nerved himself for the worst. The turnpike here was remarkably crooked, and on one side was sheltered by a thick growth of small trees, vines and weeds. Reaching a point about a quarter of a mile from the starting place, and in reaching an abrupt turn in the road, our little squad found themselves plump into a picket stand of sixty-nine infantrymen. In a moment every man of both parties had his gun cocked and leveled. The seven Confederates were all young and hot-blooded, and had, under the lead of Morgan and Duke, faced many forms of danger, but never before were the odds so great against them as now, and their mettle was to be put to the highest test. With the eye of a soldier, each realized the perilous position he and his comrades occupied. Hayes at once, in a ringing tone demanded an immediate surrender, saying that a regiment of John Morgan's cavalry was near at hand (it was one-quarter of a mile distant) and if a shot was fired not a Federal should escape alive. The officer—a Lieutenant—seemed bewildered to think that seven men should ride boldly into sixty-nine of his men and make such a demand, and especially when not more than 500 yards away the entire Federal army was drawn up as ready to march, their guns and arms glistening in the bright October sun; then just rising over the eastern hills. But the number in which the demand was made, the bearing of each of the Confederates—each ready to "kill his man" at the word fire—together with the magical name of Morgan, combined to and did save them. The officer at once surrendered his sword to Jones—who happened to be immediately in his front with his gun drawn on him—and Hayes at once placed the prisoners in position and ordered a double-quick back to the regiment. As the march began a Federal infantry regiment was rapidly advancing to the rescue of their picket comrades, but a turn in the road hid them from view, and they did not follow farther. The sight was a novel one, even for war times—seven Confederates driving sixty-nine armed Federals before them as prisoners. Duke, with a company, was soon met, coming to ascertain the situation of the little squad. He was proud in his compliments to his men for their achievement. The Federals were Michiganians, and the Lieutenant's name was Clark. In his history of Morgan and his men, Duke briefly refers to the affair, but does not give the names of the participants. He uses this language: "The expedition was, perhaps, never paralleled during the war." The facts were reported to General Morgan, and all the seven men—privates at that time—were soon afterward commissioned as officers for "gallantry." These gallant troops deserve to have their names enrolled in the future history of the mighty struggle.

Late Captain in Morgan's Command.

A person meeting an old man with silver hair and a very black bushy beard, asked him "how it happened that his beard was not so gray as the hair on his head?" "Because," said the old gentleman, "it's twenty years younger."

A younger brother, espousing an ill-tempered wife, but extremely rich, he used to say: "Whenever I find my temper giving way, I retire to my closet and console myself by reading the marriage settlement."

It was a New Jersey wife who said: "My dear, if you can't drink bad coffee without abusing me, how is it you can drink bad whiskey without abusing the barkeeper?"

God does not require us to live on credit. He pays us what he can, as we earn it; good or evil, heaven or hell, according to our choice.

Live with your friends as if they might some time become your enemies, and with your enemies as if they might some time become your friends.

An exchange tells an inquiring correspondent: "No, Rebecca; beef is not cooked on a cattle-range."

WHEN.

When you see a boy disobedient and disrespectful to his parents, men to his brothers and sisters, cruel to animals and giving toying just for the fun of it, it is not always a sure sign that he is going into business with the devil; but a pretty safe one.

When you see an old bachelor, who ought to be squaring up his accounts and getting ready for a funeral entertainment, railing at woman-kind, you may conclude that it is a sort of spur apple revenge for some of the vigorous kickings he has received in the days of auld lang syne.

When you see a maiden advanced in years turning up her nasal ornament at the lords of creation you may conclude she has given up all hopes of capturing a lord for her own use.

When you see a politician particularly anxious to shake hands with everybody he meets, you may conclude that he wants to be elected into some office.

When you see a man sneaking around saying unkind things about everybody else, you may conclude that he is mad, because everybody else is not as mean as he is.

When you see married people particularly suspicious in their endearment in public, you may conclude that there would be room for a four-year-old elephant between them when they are at home alone. When you see an old sinner put on new robes and play the role of saint you need not conclude that the devil is going out of business.

When you see the various Christian denominations quibbling away at each other and making in the battle against the devil, you conclude that the distinguished individual won't have as soft a thing as he now has.

When you see a man bat his eyes, smack his lips and look wise, it is not positive evidence that he is a lineal descendant of Solomon.

When you see a man crouching and growling and grumbling at everything around him it is not benevolent to wish that a vacant place in his family cemetery was filled, but it is natural.

Not one hundred miles below Nashville is a curious spectacle, known as the "Sun and Moon." It consists of a painting upon an immense rock which rises to an altitude of several hundred feet. As to who painted it is a mystery which has been never unraveled. Many think it was the work of the red brother centuries ago, perhaps. But there the sun and moon shine out in all the freshness of new paint. They are located midway the cliff and stand out in bold relief. As to how any human being ever reached the spot is a question which, I believe, has never been solved. It is supposed that in those days they had not gained ladders, and could not easily have reached the point from below. The only natural rope of that time was a wild grape-vine, of which Tennessee has no, and some Indian might have been by this means let down over the dizzy bluff, and when he had finished his work had again been let down or pulled up. At any rate, these pictures are there on the everlasting rock, and are likely to remain for future ages.—Cincinnati Commercial.

The latest female mania is the collection of advertising cards. The giddy little things are swooping down upon the shopkeepers like an army of devouring locusts, carrying all things in the way of advertising cards before them. Some of them, residing out of town, even go so far as to send letters, with stamps enclosed, asking the cards to be sent to them. It is curious to see how far the mania is extending. In some instances young women have been known to go into stores and make purchases of goods for which they had no need, merely for the sake of obtaining a prettily-colored and varied card. The candy dealers and confectioners are reaping quite a harvest by keeping these cards, which they give to purchasers only. Even "13-15-14" pales now before the new craze, and the female mind has at last found something to occupy it even more than dress.

The latest and most striking instances of Lenox's self-denial is reported from a fashionable female boarding school. The principal had told the young ladies that in the penitential season now at hand "they should mortify the flesh by denying themselves some particular article of food." And she glanced at the table, on which were the viands which custom provides at those establishments. The next morning the spokeswoman told her that the girls had unanimously resolved to "give up hash."

The philosopher should be a man willing to listen to every suggestion, but determined to judge for himself. He should be based by appearances, have no favorite hypothesis, be of no school, and in doctrine have no master. He should not be a respecter of persons, but of things. Truth should be his primary object. If to these qualities he adds industry, he may indeed hope to walk within the veil of the temple of nature.

A man that is of judgment and understanding, shall sometimes hear men differ, and know well within himself that those which so differ mean one thing, and yet they hear them would not agree. And if it came to pass in that distance of judgment which is between man and man, shall we not think that God above, that knows the heart, of it discards that frail man, in some of the contradictions, intend the same thing and accepted of both.

These days no one is safe from the charge of plagiarism. Brown was sent to church last Sunday—a thing unusual—and upon being asked his opinion of the clergyman said: "Oh his sermon was very good; but the prayer beginning with 'Our Father,' I think he stole entire. I know that I have heard something somewhere that it was strangely like."

Even religion seems to be taking advantage of the inventive genius of the age. It is gravely asserted that one of the "Troy churches" has determined to abolish the use of spire bells, as a relic of barbarism. Electric bells are to be arranged in the houses of all the members of the church, and the sexton can thus notify them of the time to get ready for services.

A witness on entering the box had a testament presented him, but he declined to be sworn. Being asked his reasons for refusing, he naively replied: "I'll tell a lie 'twice as often as I can tell the truth."

NO BOLLING.

It is said that a movement is on foot to nominate another Republican candidate for President, in case Grant is nominated at Chicago. We don't believe such a thing will be attempted under any circumstances. If General Grant is the successful man in carrying that Convention, he will receive the support of the Republicans of the entire country, and will be triumphantly elected. It is true there are thousands of Republicans opposed to a third-term programme, but they do not think less of Grant on that account; it is the love, respect and admiration that make the friends of Grant dislike to have him dropped into the filthy pool again.

The result of the Liberal Republican movement, when Horace Greely was sacrificed, should make Republicans move slowly toward making a second nomination for President within their own ranks. Republicans cannot afford to do so rash as to assist in throwing the Government into the hands of the Democracy by running two Republican tickets next Fall, and no other result could follow such an undertaking. That the Democrats will put up their best man for President, cannot be doubted, and their must not be any division in our ranks the coming Fall, and we hope the leaders of the party in the East will frown down all attempts to make a split in the party.

SMUGGLING.—A quantity of goods were attempted to be smuggled on the British steamer Belgic, now discharging at the Pacific Mail Dock. On this vessel were found two invoices of ten consigned to San Francisco Chinese merchants, one of fifty-six chests marked "S" in a diamond, and one of sixty chests marked "Y. L. C." George McDonald, of the Appraiser's Department, in making his examinations of the tea after it was landed upon the dock, by probing discovered that quantities of tobacco were concealed in the tea. He consequently seized both the invoices and it was sent to the Appraiser's building for further examination, which disclosed, besides a large amount of tobacco, two and a half boxes of valuable silks, worth about $500. The value of the tobacco was found to be over $2,000. The entire weight of the packages containing these smuggling goods was about 4,600 pounds, or more than two tons.

EXCURSION TO CALIFORNIA.—The Inter-Ocean says: Dr. Ordway will leave Boston April 12th, with an excursion party numbering about 200 persons, for San Francisco. Among them are Governor Head, wife and daughter of New Hampshire, accompanied by his staff. Many other distinguished individuals will arrive at Chicago, Wednesday morning, April 14th, where quite a number of persons will join the excursion, and leave on the 10 o'clock A. M. train, via Chicago and North Western Railway, for California.

The Los Angeles Commercial tells how a citizen of that burg overreached himself. The authorities were building a sewer, and he refused the right of way unless his assessment for the same (a small one) was waived. Whereupon the Council changed the route of the sewer to avoid passing through his property, but to skirt its edge, rendering the property liable to an assessment about quadruple the former one.

A curiosity was recently discovered in the shape of a natural fish trap in Little Sulphur creek, Sonoma county. There are three rocks so situated in the stream that when the salmon pass up if they spring a little too far to the left they fall into a small basin or pond, about four feet square, and can go no further.

The Supreme Court has decided the Boards of Education have the right to change the text books used in the public schools. [The Oakland Board recently changed from McGuffey's to "Appleton" text-books, and suit was brought to restrain the action.]

It is reported that John L. Keegan has discovered in the Oro Fino mine, about four miles from Roseville, sixty feet below the surface, the bones of a mastodon in a splendid state of preservation.

A banquet is to be given at the Town House, Shasta county, about the 1st of May, to which all the newspaper men of Northern California will be invited.

THE CHRONICLE.

BODIE, APRIL 8, 1890.

The CHRONICLE Office is on the second floor of "Goodson's Building," east side of Main street, between Standard Avenue and Green street.

Job Printing.—Job printing of the finest description, will be furnished at this office at Sacramento prices.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

"Wild Cat."—The Standard is quite dignified, and complains that parties are trying to, and are, injuring it, because it won't "write up" wild cat mining property. We do not know what property it refers to as being "wild cat," but one thing is certain—and it will show it—that it has "written up" in the highest style of the art every mining claim now being worked in the camp. Perhaps we are wrong, but we do not look upon any of the mines now being worked as real "wild cats." We all know that the Bodie, now so famous as a rich mine, was considered as much a "wild cat" as any in the land, and as it has proved everything but a feline, why have not the rest of the mines in this district as good a prospect for becoming as famous as the Bodie? It is all bosh, that the Standard is losing caste and patronage on account of its not "writing up" our mines. It is losing its patronage and business generally, because it is not worthy of public confidence and has lost its patronage, and can never hope to recover its former standing—when it had no competitors.

Robert Kemmer.—The performance of the above play last evening was more than creditable. Where all did so well it is difficult to distinguish. The leading role was happily and admirably executed by Mr. Cuddy, and Mrs. Higson made a splendid Colleen Oge. Mrs. Orth, in the Obo, which succeeded the play proper, sang in an artistic and most pleasing manner. "The Harp that once through Tara's Hall," "Articulate" and "Zavatory" in their Barn door jig, and other gentlemen, name not to the bill, did splendidly, and were greatly applauded. The programme concluded with a recitation by Mr. Hunter of "Little Tootie Stroupe," which was magnificently recited, and rapturously applauded. The house was crowded. The performance will be repeated this evening and we commend it to the public.

The Sechorn Case.—We learn that the Sechorn case against the Bodie & Meadows Tail Road Co., has been unanimously closed by the defendant coming into Court and showing Sechorn's receipt for the settlement of the whole matter. It is said that the matter was settled by the Company paying Sechorn $3,000. This may be so, and may not, but it is a fact that when the case was called for trial on Tuesday the plaintiff did not put in an appearance. This case has been an embarrassment on our people, it having cost the county over $5,000.

L. O. O. F. Ball.—On Monday, the 26th of April, Bodie Lodge, L. O. O. F., will celebrate the anniversary of the Order by giving a grand ball at Miners' Union Hall. The music will be furnished by Begler's Band, a guarantee that it will be good. The entertainment is given by this Lodge have always been very enjoyable, and there is no doubt but what the coming one will be equally so.

"Corrina."—The Standard accuses us of copying from that paper. This is pretty cool in a paper that never goes to press without from one to a half dozen items copied bodily from the CHRONICLE. But we do not complain; we expect it to do so.

Horrible.—The warm weather yesterday made Main street almost impassible for man or beast. It is a nice job for a person to cross it and not disappear from the sight of those fortunate enough to be able to keep the sidewalks.

Stage to Bodie.—The San Andreas Citizen is informed by its Copperopolis correspondent that on or about the first of May there is to be another line of stages put on running from Bodie to Milton; also another from Milton to Yosemite.

Another Set.—Charles G. Ewing commenced suit on the 1st of April against the Oro Mining Company and others, asking that that company be perpetually enjoined from increasing its capital stock from the ten millions to $13,400,000.

All Right.—The broken spur wheel at the Standard mine was replaced and in running order within 24 hours after the stoppage. Everything is now working well.

A Help.—We do not know what our evening contemporary would do for items items were not for its morning friends. We are glad for its sake that it draws so well from the columns of the CHRONICLE.

Another Paper.—We learn that Ramon Spencer, of this place, contemplates starting a paper at Bridgeport, to be called the Bridgeport Sentinel. Next!

Failed.—The dry goods house of A. Hass & Co., which expected to overshadow all others of like business, was attacked yesterday by a San Francisco firm.

Travels.—We acknowledge the receipt of the Drainage bills introduced by Assemblyman Young and Bennett.

New Postmaster.—James Watterson has been appointed Postmaster at Benton, Mono county.

Personal.—Judge S. P. Scanlon and Miss Mollie Scanlon, late of Bodie are now in Modesto.
